Historic:

The AMX-30 was produced at "Atelier d'Issy-les-Moulineaux" (France). The crew consists of 4 men: the pilot, tank commander, the gunner and the charger. The tank is put into service in France in 1967 and are removed in 1997 for the AMX-30B version.

The AMX-30 B2 (product MM-R158 from Model-Miniature) has a gun CN-105 F-1, a coaxial 20 mm, a 7.62mm machine gun AANF1 coupled to a projector (which can receive an infrared filter for night vision) is fixed to the turret. Pots smoke launchers positioned on either side of the rear of the turret complete the close defense of the armored vehicle and a laser rangefinder, thermal imager...

The AMX-30 B2 Brenus is the evolution of its predecessor by the addition of reactive shielding in the form of bricks.

Today, the AMX-30 B2 Brenus is no longer active in the French army, (replaced by the Leclerc). However, they can still be seen in the "Forces Adversaires" (FORAD) at CENZUB and CENTAC, where the vehicles are painted with a grey pixel camouflage at CENZUB and a blue / grey camouflage at CENTAC.

Dans ce centre, les FORces ADverses (FORAD) ont comme particularité de posséder sur leurs véhicules des camouflages spécialement conçus pour mieux les confondre en milieu urbain. Ce schéma de peinture si particulier a été appliqué sur différents engins. Que vous allez découvrir dans cet ouvrage. Bonne lecture !
